

Plataforma Virtual de Aprendizaje.

UNPAtalk 4.0

El "going to" es una estructura en inglés que se utiliza para expresar planes futuros, intenciones o predicciones basadas en evidencia actual. Se forma utilizando el verbo "to be" conjugado en el presente (am/is/are) seguido de "going to" y luego el verbo principal en su forma base.

Detalles

Definición: Se usa para hablar sobre planes o intenciones futuras que ya se han decidido o que se basan en evidencia presente.

"Construcción: Se forma con la estructura: Sujeto + verbo "to be" conjugado (am/is/are) + "going to" + verbo principal en su forma base.

Usos:

- ✓ Para hablar de planes o intenciones futuras: "I am going to study for the exam tomorrow."
- ✓ Para hacer predicciones basadas en evidencia presente: "Look at those clouds, it's going to rain soon." Para expresar decisiones tomadas previamente: "She is going to start her new job next month."

Planes futuros: I am going to travel to Europe next summer. I've already booked my flights and hotels. I'm really excited to explore different countries and experience new cultures.

Predicciones basadas en evidencia: Look at those dark clouds. It's going to storm soon. The weather forecast also mentioned heavy rainfall and strong winds for this evening.

Intenciones previamente decididas: She is going to start her own business. She's been saving money for years, and she's finally ready to pursue her dream of entrepreneurship.

Expectativas personales:

They are going to have a baby!
They've been planning this for a while, and they just found out the exciting news. They are both thrilled about becoming parents.

Rutinas o acciones

premeditadas: We are going to renovate our house next month.
We've been discussing changes for a while now, and we've hired a contractor to start the work.

